Mine Workers Receive 45% Increase In Pension; 62-65 Years

Elaine Tanner Visits C.N.P.

Mr. Don DeCocco, chairman of the C.N.P. recreation board, presented Elaine Tanner with a gift of the sub-distric board members, on behalf of all the citizens of the Pass.

Elaine and her husband, Ian Nhangang gave a detailed presentation of all the major swimming strokes at the Pass pool on July 22.

Miss Tanner expressed delight with the pool facilities and hoped they would be used to full advantage.

Shower Held For Mrs. Bill Krywolt

Wednesday, July 12, in the Elk's Hall, Blairmore, a very lovely shower was held in honour of Mrs. Bill Krywolt (Jackie Peressini).

The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts, for which she shyly thanked her many friends for attending.

A very special thanks to the hostesses for working so hard to make her shower such a memorable occasion, and to those who donated and could not attend.

District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America officers John Delaney, president; Stanley Groucutt, secretary-treasurer; Donald McDonald, representative, and E. Deanna, representative, along with the sub-distric board members, successfully negotiated a 45% increase in the pensions paid to all members of the United Mine Workers of America, between the ages of 62 and 65 years, which will also include all members receiving a disability pension.

This now brings the pension from the Welfare and Retirement Fund of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America to these members up to $175.00 per month from $120.00 per month previous to this increase.

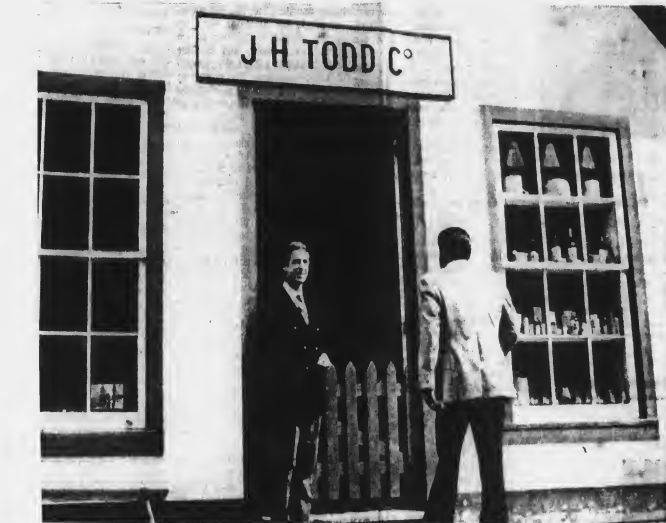

The United Mine Workers of America is very pleased with the co-operation of the contributing companies who made these increases possible.

COUNCIL PICKS WINNER FOR NEW SUB-DIVISION

In the recent contest advertising for a name for the new sub-division, the winner is Mrs. Mital Moore and the name chosen was Pine View Drive. There were many names submitted and council appreciated the interest shown in the contest and also giving logical reasons for the names submitted and council regrets that many more prizes could not have been awarded.

There was a good account of the business transacted by the council. A vote of thanks has been extended to the secretary, Mr. John Kapakla.

Two senior citizens were present requesting assistance from the Town of Coleman to purchase two sets of horse shoes and also material to build a horse shoe pitch. Council agreed. This will be built near the ice arena, where the senior citizens already have a recreation room.

Another delegation attended council meeting complaining about the dust created by trucks that have been detoured through their alley. The farman was instructed to all this and thus eliminate some of the problem. This detour was necessary to extend the sewer to the Carbogile area.

A letter was received from the Department of Lands and Forests stating many lakes are prohibited the use of motor boats on them. Among the areas pertaining to our district is Allison Dam, Summit Lake and Emerald Lake.

Several lots were purchased by Fine Line Homes and did not have buildings constructed on them within a specified time. Lots have reverted to the town.

After receiving several applications for caretaker services for the library and recreation room, the contract will be awarded to Mrs. C. Haslet.

Council will contact Mr. Ron Nadeau of CFMTV in Calgary in hopes of having the satellite installed by September.

Council will send a letter to Astro Glass Ltd., manufacturers of fibre glass reinforced plastic products, regarding the delay in the two Alberta litter bins that have been ordered more than a year ago. These are constantly advertised on TV and yet the town has not received their order.

Charlton and Hill have started work on the roof of the Coleman ice arena, while the weather is co-operating.

A letter was received from the Coleman Collieries re the cul-de-sac on 7th street, stating that because of lack of participation by the town, the company does not feel obligated to construct the cul-de-sac. Council will inform the Coleman Collieries that there is a misunderstanding as the town was always willing to co-operate.

There was a report given by the representative of the recreation board and council was informed that salaries for staff of the Pass community pool was approximately $1,800 for two weeks.

Medicare Fees May Rise In 1973

The fear that Albertans pay for the health care insurance plan may rise in 1973, Dr. C. J. Varul, president of the Alberta Medical Association said on Thursday.

He said in an interview that no fee hike was planned in 1972, but the association was considering changes in the fee schedule in light of economic changes.

The association is following guidelines set by the federal tax laws on health services in the mid 1960's. Dr. Varul said. The task force recommended that fee schedules change be made every three years and he said the Alberta schedule hasn't altered since 1968.

Coleman Arena Gets New Roof

Charlton and Hill, roofing contractors of Lethbridge, Alberta, have commenced work on the roof of the Coleman ice arena.

Meeting Held

At a regular UMW of a meeting held on June 25, Mr. William Skura president of the United Mine Workers of local 2533 in Coleman was elected as a district 16 board member and will be representing the Coleman area for a one year term. His duties commenced June 26 and will expire June 30, 1973, when an election of all officers for the local union will be held.

Report From PARLIAMENT HILL

ALLEN SULATYCKY M.P.
... Rocky Mountain

Prime Minister Trudeau has been known to wear the unusual in clothing on occasion. Such instances rarely escape the attention of the press. But even the sharpest members of the parliamentary press gallery failed to notice the extraordinary footwear the Prime Minister wore when he recently entered the House of Commons in a pair of mountain climbing boots.

Even Mr. Trudeau himself was unaware of his footwear until he reminded of the Rocky Mountains by the presence in the spectators' gallery of a visitor from our part of the country.

During a recent vote in the Commons I noticed one of Banff's most respected citizens, Catharine Whyte seated in the gallery with Stella Cameron, wife of Senator Donald Cameron. Since the Prime Minister had met Mrs. Whyte on two of his visits to Rocky Mountain, I drew her presence to his attention.

After greeting Catharine with a discreet wave he turned around to tell me that he was appropriately dressed to greet a visitor from Banff since he had his climbing boots on.

Catharine was even more surprised than I a few minutes later when he met her outside the Commons door dressed sure enough in climbing boots.

That morning he had decided to spend several days mountain climbing in the Rockies during the parliamentary recess. Since being introduced to the pleasures of climbing in Jasper during his 1968 visit there he has been anxious to go on another climbing trip in the Rockies.

Having decided to make the trip this summer, he bought a new pair of climbing boots and donated them. As he was seated behind the Prime Minister's office could not see that while he worked he was also breaking in his new boots.

Later in the afternoon when the division bells began to ring summoning Members to the House of Commons for an unexpected vote, the Prime Minister had himself forgotten about his footwear until he saw Mrs. Whyte in the gallery. Catharine was only one of several recent visitors to Ottawa from Rocky Mountain. Summer often brings many visitors from all parts of Canada to Ottawa and Parliament Hill, some on holidays, many on business. In recent weeks others who had reason to visit Parliament Hill include Whitecourt's postmaster and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Vic Young; Lola Lange of Banff, one of the Commissioners on the Royal Commission on the Status of Women; Shirley Tope of Banff, who is working on an ambitious theatre project; and two prominent labour leaders in Rocky Mountain, Stan Fritter of Hinton and Bill Skura of Coleman.

Former Whitecourt residents, Norm and Carol Crawford and family, now of Fort McMurray, were also recent visitors to Parliament Hill.

Jehovah's Witnesses Return From Successful Assembly

Local Jehovah's Witnesses returned this week from Lethbridge, Alberta where they attended a four day district assembly from August 3-6.

Mr. Jones, presiding minister of the Coleman group who was responsible for refreshments throughout the four-day meet said that a very successful assembly concluded on Sunday with a counted attendance of 3,511 present to hear their featured speaker from Toronto address the packed-out Exhibition Park audience on the Watchtower Society's chosen subject 'Divine Ruleship'—the Only Hope of All Mankind.

Mr. Malpass proceeded to develop his subject by saying that 'all of us have petty individual hopes and fears, but would it not be wonderful if there was a hope in which all mankind could share regardless of race, color, nation or social position?'

unnumbered persons' Mr. Malpass, main Witness speaker for the Lethbridge gathering, inferred that 'these very same conditions imparted fresh vigor to the heightened hopes of others.' He went on to say: 'The Divine Being, Jehovah, long ago saw that mankind needed a hope, and he set one before them. This hope that He gives, said the Watchtower spokesmen, has the power to sustain us in the most difficult times and to save us through them until the joyous realization of the hope.'

The overflow assemblage of convention delegates and their friends were then told—that desirable time is very near now and that it is the expectation of those who have the God-given hope higher and higher.

Mr. Jones said that 74 new ministers of the group were baptized by complete water immersion in symbol of Christian dedication. Twenty similar conventions have been arranged for the 'Witnesses' in Canada with anticipated total crowds close to 100,000 persons. Two Alberta meets have been slated for Alberta.

SALAD MONTH

TOSS A SPECIAL SALAD

Salads are tempting, satisfying and nutritious, as well as a boon to those who must count their calories. The variety of salads is almost infinite: from simple to elaborate, from first course to desert, and from those designed mainly to whet the appetite to others that are whole meals in themselves. Many salads go well with meat, poultry, fish, eggs or cheese; or a salad may include any of these foods.

Vegetables and fruits, especially when eaten raw, are important to health because of their minerals and vitamins and because they add variety, color and bulk to the diet. Good nutrition should be enjoyed, and what better way than by the generous use of salads.

Salad Greens — Probably the best known salad green is iceberg lettuce but there are many interesting greens that can turn a salad into something special. Add color and texture to your salads by experimenting with watercress, chicory (curly endive), Boston lettuce, escarole, romaine, parsley and spinach.

Cleaning and Stering — Always clean the greens before storing. For tight heads of lettuce, knock out the core and then hold head under running water. For other varieties, break off individual leaves, put them in a colander and hold under cold running water. Don't cut leaves with a knife — this causing browning. Wrap in paper or linen towels then in plastic wrap. They will keep refrigerated for about two weeks.

Salad Dressing — Pick a dressing to go with the greens. Creamy dressings are nice on crisp greens such as iceberg or romaine. But one of the very best dressings for a 'special salad' is a simple french dressing. Try the following: Combine 2 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. paprika, 1 tsp. powdered mustard and a few grains of cayenne with one-third cup vinegar. Add two-thirds cup oil and shake well before using.

Special Additions — Sliced radishes, green pepper, green onions, Spanish onion rings, Chinese pea pods, sliced celery, cherry tomatoes, broccoli spears, sliced olives, crisp bacon, croutons, chopped egg, sliced mushrooms, toasted almonds, chopped apple, grated or cubed cheese or meat or fish, raisins, peanuts (1 could go for ever).

There is a free pamphlet available at the Department of Agriculture office entitled 'Salads' (The first pages of the publication give information on buying, storing and preparing recipes for salad dressings).

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED

By ELEANOR BLAIR

Though the wild flowers that bloom in the spring did not show to advantage this year in the cold wet weather, along now comes the blue chichory that always flowers toward the end of July and into August with color to rival the blue-bells of Scotland.

This flowering is only to be seen in the morning, for, like the morning glory, the blossoms close up in the afternoon. Chichory is regarded as a weed, and farmers do their best to get rid of it, though in other countries the ground-up roots are used to make a substitute for coffee, and it is also considered quite a delicacy in salads.

Early in the day, around about seven, the countryside is enchanting with these patches of blue. From the viewpoint of childhood, chichory is beautiful to pick and take home and proffer in a cup as a fine centerpiece for the dining table. Children do not think of it as a weed, but, then, to children many things are beautiful. I wonder how much remains with adults in an adult world, of the child that once they were. There is a Latin phrase, "memoria retinere" which means, I think, "retain the memory." And perhaps adults would be happier if they retained more memories of what gladdened their hearts when they were very young.

When one thinks of it that phrase could be used, too, with autographs, or photographs, and in many human relations from pleasant associations to true love.

Summer is a childhood time. Kids run barefoot carrying fishing poles, swim in the rivers and do not seem to feel the heat as their elders do. Not that anyone is objecting to the heat of this particular summer. Except that the temperature rose approximately 40 degrees in about a week, which is a fairly sudden change. Anyway it is much too warm to write a controversial column which someone suggested I should do. He pointed out that there are many strange happenings here, as indeed there are.

But who wants to start a war in the hot weather?

PROPOSALS

Solicited for a Study into
Environmental Effects of Timber Harvesting

The Hon. Allan A. Warrack, P.A.G., Minister of Lands and Forests, wishes to obtain an assessment of the environmental effects of timber harvesting as it is presently practised on forest lands in the Foothills Section of the Boreal Forest Region and in the East Slope Rockies Section of the Sub-Alpine Forest Region of Alberta.

There are three areas of concern, each deserving specific investigation and analysis as part of this study. The three are: (1) timber harvesting systems. Each of the three areas should be examined by persons qualified to assess the effect that forest land management practices have on the long term productivity and use of the land for timber production, watershed, wildlife and recreation. A final report containing the results of the study, with an assessment of present procedures and recommendations for improvement will be required by September 1, 1973.

The Government of Alberta is prepared to enter into a contract for the study with a group composed of qualified professionals with watershed, wildlife and recreation; or with a consulting firm with access to such persons.

Proposals must be submitted by September 30, 1972 and anyone interested should contact the undersigned for further information.

Tax Millions Saved

The finance department plans to change a court-ordered interpretation of income-tax regulations that would have resulted in millions of dollars in higher taxes for industries.

The intention was revealed in a department announcement of proposed changes in tax regulations flowing from Finance Minister John Turner's budget of last May 8.

Included in the proposals is some indication of how the department intends to define the "manufacturing and processing" companies that will be eligible for faster tax write-offs on money paid out for new equipment and for special rates of corporate income tax under the latest budget.

A court case for British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., hinging on whether certain items of business equipment—a large wood-processing facility in this case—should be classified as equipment of structures is at the nub of one change.

A department assessor who decided the B.C. Forest equipment should be classified as a structure rather than as equipment meaning a depreciation write-off of five per cent annually allowed for equipment, started the whole thing.

The case went all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada, where the assessor's opinion was upheld. The court noted that, in its opinion, the government was making similar errors in write-off classification for such things as oil storage tanks, which under proper interpretation of definitions in the law appeared as though they should be classified as structures rather than production equipment.

The 1971 decision jolted industrialists in many fields, who could see changed classifications, and far slower write-offs, coming for much of what they previously had been allowed to classify as part of their production equipment.

They complained that the court interpretation amounted to implementing a change in government policy and asked for a review.

The department announcement said such a review has been conducted and the decision has been taken to allow the practice prior to the court decision to stand.

The amendment will be retroactive, a department spokesman said, so that no company would be out of pocket as a result of the court-challenged definition.

"Many, many millions of dollars" would have been involved if the court interpretation had been allowed to stand, the spokesman said, with severe effects on cash flow and profit positions of companies involved.

The department cannot amend the regulations immediately since a bill implementing the changes announced in Turner's budget has not yet been passed by Parliament. It got only routine first reading in the Commons before the House broke off for a summer recess.

But the department said it was announcing its intention to revamp the regulations so that corporate taxpayers would have a chance to plan affairs spending passage of the bill.

The other proposed change in regulations concern even faster depreciation write-offs and special low rates of corporate income tax for Canadian companies engaged in manufacturing and processing.

The Turner budget offered such firms a fast depreciation, up to 50 per cent in the first year, for capital outlays for equipment and a lower rate of tax on their corporate profits — a 40 per cent maximum starting next Jan. 1 compared with 49 per cent for other corporations.

The fast write-off, which was made effective from budget night last May 8, is to apply to property acquired "for the purpose of gaining or producing the taxpayer's Canadian manufacturing and processing profits."

It would apply to the corporate taxpayer whose principal business is leasing such property that they then lease, or to financiers and lenders who lease equipment which then produces Canadian manufacturing or processing profits.

The department said no attempt will be made to provide "an exhaustive" definition of what is meant by manufacturing and processing profits.

The idea was to keep the approach flexible, with the revenue department able to provide rulings where the definition became doubtful.

Lifeguards Must Be Trained

Can anyone off the street competently lifeguard or instruct? If you take a close look at what is involved, you will probably find that certain training and experience is vital to doing a good job.

An instructor is a teacher — and basically people are born with the talent of teaching others. However, to do a good job, one must know how people learn, what can aid or disrupt learning, as well as the physical techniques of each stroke. A good swimmer can not just up and teach, as very infrequently they do not have any idea what exact different parts of their body are doing in a given stroke. So, although they can see that the pupil is not swimming the stroke properly, they don't know why or how to correct it. This leads to frustration all around and can discourage a potential instructor.

On the other hand, instructor certification does not mean that one knows all there is to know about teaching swimming. It means that the individual has been exposed to various aspects of teaching, been guided in his teaching methods, been evaluated in his personal level of swimming — and has attained a certain standard of competence as a swimming instructor. As one does not expect trainees to graduate and take over the company, so recently qualified instructors should not be expected to become experienced pool managers overnight.

Can a good swimmer become an instant lifeguard? The Department of Health and Welfare does not think so as they are increasing the qualifications necessary for employment as a lifeguard. Every year, would-be rescuers are themselves drowned by the family or friend they were attempting to rescue. Lifeguarding is no joke—that is why people are trained in the dangers of rescue, as well as coping with emergencies. Often, most accidents in swimming areas are minor, but must the major one be fatal due to incompetence?

The required qualifications are very strongly upheld by the people who have had a good deal to do with aquatics — and many of them feel these are extremely basic and not really adequate.
